Written Evidence

“We all have our own ways of expressing ourselves and our own creative ideas. Whether it’s painting or building, we use our hands to transform our ideas into real products. In my sustained investigation, I studied how individuals express their creativity by working with their hands. This portfolio depicts how creative ideas of individuals are developed into final products. Every three photos connect together to form one of five storylines. Every photo is centered around one of three themes: individual, hands, and product. Each theme is emphasized through the use of centering and camera lens focus techniques. Photos 1, 4, 7, 10, 13 focus on the individual along with their unique personalities and motivations. With different facial expressions, each person shows their true self. Photos 2, 5, 8, 11, 14 focus on the hands of each individual and the process of turning ideas into physical products. The hands of each photo are in action and are working on the final creation. Photos 3, 6, 9, 12, 15 focus on the creative product. Each product is different, but all are important and significant in their own way.”
